A ROUND OF TALK.

From Over the Hills

Softly and sweetly, from over the hills,
The voices are calling to me, to me
With musical rhythm the drift with the winds,
In the lyrical tones of the wold and lea.
How gently the notes fall on the ear,
Like the ripple and splash of rollicking rills,
So sweetly, and softly, and gently they come—
The voices that call from over the hills.

From over the hills, the far-away hills
Where crested, the peaks reach half to the sky,
And clothed in fringes of shimmering green,
Half hid in the clouds now scampering by—
The voices are calling in ecstasy rare,
Tunefully sweet, sublimest of trills,
They are calling today, and calling to me,
Drifting and lifting from over the hills.

From over the hills, from over the hills—
The voice of the twits, the wren and the rook.
How sweetly they blend with the swish of the wind
And the gurgle and splash of the winding brook,
How gently they lilt with the lilting air—
How gloomily sad are the innermost thrills,
When sweetly, and softly, and gently they come—
The voices that call from over the hills.
—New Orleans Times-Democrat

REED—Lieut. Will Reed who has been stationed with the Third U. S. Cavalry at Presido, Cal, for several mouths left San Francisco on the transport Logan on August 1st for Manila where he is assigned to the Sixth Cavalry. He goes via the island of Guam and in a letter to the editor of this paper promises to write for publication some facts and observations from that country as well as something about Manila. This is Lieut. Reed's second trip to the Philippines he having spent nearly two years with the army in the Southernmost islands of the Philippines groupe. When he left here several months ago to join his regiment then stationed at Columbus Barracks Will was rather opposed to the idea of seeing any more service in Orient but it is probable that the monotony of barracks life made the call for active duty a welcome one.

SEVERE BLOW—The action of the fire insurance trust in advancing rates on certain property in the town of Springfield was a severe blow to some of the best business interests of the town. The action of the insurance people is all the more severe because it was so unexpected and appears so altogether unwarranted by circumstances. The property holders and tax payers had been led to believe by these same insurance people that a lower rate of insurance would be allowed by reason of the good fire protection since the building of the water works system and aside from the annual expense incurred for water rent ior fire plugs the town has gone to other expense in fitting out fire companies and fire fighting apparatus. If these matters were taken into consideration by the insurance people when they made these new rates it is awful to contemplate just what the rate would be without the water works. The rate under this new schedule is as high as $10 on the $100 of insurance which is simply prohibitory and will result in every property owner carrying his own risk. Fortunately however some parts of the town escaped the big raise but the rates for the town are all too high. An insurance company outside of the Underwriters trust and that would afford the property owners a living rate would be welcomed here and it is a wonder that some such does not appear.

QUEER OPPOSITION. —The vote on the graded school question will be taken on next Saturday and the indications are now that the proposition to levy the necessary tax will carry by a good majority, Some rather queer conditions have developed in the opposition to the school movement. There are a few who oppose the school on the grounds of high taxes Some of these are property owners who do not believe the direct benefit to themselves from the school will compensate them for the increased burden of taxation. That is a point which at least affords reasonable grounds for argument although we believe that the large property holder will be benefitted by all public improvements in a community, for the better the town the more valuable the property. A most remarkable character has developed however on the side of the opposition. It is the fellow who owns no property and who pays no taxes and whose only assets in fact consist in children of which he has the usual poor man's plenty. If there is any one class that a good free school in a community is calculated to benefit more than another that class is certainly the one of the poor citizen with a house full of children to educate. He is certainly in a position to get a good run for his money. However we believe that there are only a few of that kind in the community The majority of the poor voters express the very sensible sentiment to the effect that if the big tax payers favor the improvement the fellow who pays no tax should have no objection,

CORN CROP— The recent fine showers throughout the county has about settled the corn crop question and unless all signs fail Washington county will produce an immense corn crop this year. In some portions of the county where corn was planted early the crop is practically made while in other places only another rain or so later on is needed to assure a good yield. A feature of the local market among the farmers is the great demand for shotes and feeding hogs, as high as eight cents per pound being paid. The big corn crop evidently has an influence over the demand for hogs.

Marriage license were granted this morning to r. C. Gordon and Miss Grace Hourigan. The groom is a prosperous farmer of Washington and his bride is one of Marion county's accomplished and popular young ladies. The marriage took place at the home of the bride near Rileys.

Lebanon won! That is the only cry we have heard from the base ball boys this week. A team went to Calvary Sunday afternoon and played a game with that team. The result was a victory for our boys by a score of 19 to 6. This seems to have put new life into our baseballists and they say there will be better ball paying here in the near future.

The mare, Alice Russell, sold by Messrs. Estes & Robey about a month ago for $2,500 to Mr. Scott Hudson of Lexington, won a $1,500 stake at Detroit two weeks ago and on last Tuesday she won a $3,000 stake at Cleveland. She is now entered in a race at Providence, R I, for a $10,000 stake and Mr. Estes says her chances are good to win. This mare is just seven years old and was bred on the farm of Mr. S. A. Russell of this city. He sold her a few years ago to Mr. Robey for a Jersey cow and $10, and later Mr. Robey sold a half interest in her to Mr. Taylor Estes for $500.

Messrs. S. H. Grinstead & Co., have just balanced their books for their last five months ending July 22. The statement shows that they paid $41,392.86, from their four stations, Greensbgrg, Campbellsville, Springfield and Lebanon to the farmers for eggs and poultry during that time. The number of eggs handled was 2,502,768

Scotts Ridge is in trouble again. During the recent affair in which Johnson Price killed George Price a dwounded Henry Price. a young man by the name of Dug Allen took a hand. He then left the neighborhood and was not seen about there until one day last week. It is reported that he shot at Johnson Price Saturday from ambush with a winchester. The ball barely missed its mark and when Allen saw that his work had failed be hurriedly left the scene of action The shooting occured near the point where Taylor, LaRue and Marion join and a state warrant was placed in the hands of the officers Monday.

Wins Cadetship

The competitive examination held at Versailles last week at the request of Senator Blackburn for the selection of an appointee to a cadetship in the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. Md. resulted in John Paul Miller of Lancaster winning the much coveted honor. John Paul Miller is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John W Miller of Lancaster. The successful boy is twenty years old. Three years ago he won a scoolarship in the State College at Lexington from Garrard county. This was also a competitive examination conducted by the school superintendent Miss Eliza Lusk, now Mrs. Lewis L. Walker. He has attended this institution since and would have been graduated from it next June had he not won the naval cadetship. He is a member of the State College chapter of the Phi Delta Theta, a Greek letter society.—Danville Courier.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word but when you think how liable you are not to purchase for 75 cent the only remedy universally known and a ramedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs Bronchitis, Croup and especially for Consumption where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. Thieving Negro

Belle Burton, colored was arrested Tuesday afternoon and placed in jail by Chief Thompson on a larceny charge. It seems that Belle had been working for Mrs. Theodore Weber for about nine months Monday evening Mr. Weber's daughter missed her gold watch. An investigation followed and Belle was suspected. Chief Thompson searched her premises, found the watch, three gold medals. nine pipes, a lot of silverware and tableware, a gold ring and numerous articles of winter clothing. Many of these things, all of them in fact except seven of the pipes were identified by Mr. Weber. These articles had been carried away one at a time and had not been missed by the family. No doubt the thieving had been going on for several months. Belle Burton was the wife of Isaac Burton who died recently. —Lebanon Enterprise.

BEN HARDIN.

Story of the Famous Lawyer's Death and the causes that Led Thereto:

Perhaps "Old Ben" Hardin's years upon earth might been prolonged had he heeded the advice of his wife, says Judge Little in writing of the famous lawyer. It was on a beautiful sabbath day in May that he left Bardstown on his way to attend court at Lebanon. His riding horse was inclined to be easily scared and his saddle girth was defective. As he was starting on his journey Mrs. Hardin noticed the girth and expostulated with him about incurring the danger, but with a smile and a jocular remark he rode away.

He lodged that night with his son-in-law, Dr. Palmer near Springfield. The following morning in attempting while he was mounted to open a gate that led to the turnpike, the saddle girth broke precipitating Mr. Hardin to the ground. He was so injured as to be unable to rise. Dr. Palmer who had witnessed the accident hastened to his assistance. As the doctor approached Mr Hardin looked up from his prostrate position, and with a smile repeated the lines from Burns:

"How many lengthened, sage advices, the husband frae the wife despises."

By the fall the sciatic and sacral nerves were bruised. His wife brought him to Bardstown in a carriage, but all that affectionate nursing could accomplish under the best medical advice afforded no permanent relief. His sufferings were great but were borne with patient and philosophical fortitude. He soon realized that his recovery was doubtful. Many weary nights his neighbors and friends watched at his bedside.

The long hours of suffering brought to Mr. Hardin's mind the importance of preparing for death. Always a believer in the Christian religion and in the plan of salvation revealed in the Bible, he had from time to time postponed accepting its terms. He called as a religious adviser Mr. McAllister, the pastor of the Methodist church in Bardstown and he was received into the membership of the church.

Afterwards he so far recovered as to be moved from his bed to an invalid chair in which he spent a part of each day. He caused a vehicle to be made so arranged that he could ride in it and take the air. In anticipation of soon being able to move about unassisted he provided himself with crutches. But this hope was of short duration; The faithful wife was overcome by fatigue and anxiety and she was seized with a congestive chill and rapidly declined. On August 4, 1852 she was known to be dying. Mr. Hardin had himself carried to her bedside and there he remained, a dazed and broken spirited watcher till the end came,

After this he lost hope and patiently waited for his hour to come. Shortly afterwards he was attacked similarly to his wife and did not long survive.

The members of his own family who had died before him had been buried in the cemetery at Bardstown, His father and his mother rested in a burial place on the farm in Washington county where they had first settled in the wilderness It was the understanding in the family that Mr. Hardin his mother to be buried by her side. During the last days he called his children around his bed and at his request his daughter Mrs. Riley read the 27th chapter of Genesis verses 29, 30 and 31. After reading had ended, addressing those around him he said: "All of you lay your hands upon my thigh and promise me that you will not bury me here but will take my remains to Washington county and there bury me by the side of my parents. Says Mrs. Riley, "we promised."

On Friday September 24, 1852 rational and conscious to the last he peacefully and quietly passed away.

On the farm in Washington county where Mr. Hardin's parents had settled on coming to Kentucky in 1788, their bodies had been entered to rest. Others of his family dying before him had been interred in the old town cemetery at Bardstown Mrs. Hardin being the last. By the side of his parents in a spot marked by evergreen trees and some locusts in an old and neglected field near the public road near Lebanon a few miles from the former stands a stone bearing the simple inscription, "Ben Hardin of Bardstown.—Ky Standard.

The Confederate Home.

Out of the thirty-five sites offered the Confederate Home, the Board of Trustees in executive session at the Galt House Louisville, yesterday morning, rejected thirty and reserved Owensboro, Harrodsburgh, Bardstown, Frankfort and Pewee Valley for a special tour of inspection before deciding on the relative merits offered by each. While it is possible that not one of these five places may be thought to have all the qualifications necessary for a favorable choice, it is practically certain that the home will be built at one of them. The investigation tour will be made by the board as a body; will cover several days, and will probably result in an immediate settlement of the question. The committee is expected to leave Louisville on August 18. Messrs. A. R. Carothers and George R. Mattingly, of Bardstown, and A. L. Harned, of Boston, were present at the meeting in behalf of Bardstown, and presented two sites—Brooks' farm and the D. J. Wood place. The former was offered for $5,000 with a donation of $500; the latter for $6,500 with a donation of $500.—Standard

Hitch in Affairs.

There are some funny features of rural journalism, A Benton paper this week contains half a column about two couples that ran away to Metropolis and got married, It winds up with a "later" in which it says; "Since writing the above we have been informed that there was a hitch in affairs somewhere, probably 'Barkis was not willing, or still more probable the young ladies asked for a continuance of the case which was granted, However that may be, we now believe there was no wedding and the young men, ashamed to own that they got left misrepresented things to us and their friends. We withdraw our congratulations and can realize with the boys that "there's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip."—Paducah Sun.

STEEPLE CLIMBING.

It Is a Dark as Well as a Dangerous Business.

Steeple climbing is in truth "dark business," says the Boston Transcript, for it is the custom of experts to make the first ascent and place the rigging at night. Then, when the townspeople wake, they are amazed at finding that the steeple conquered. The man who makes a success of steeple climbing must be determined, persistent and ingenious. He must solve many a practical problem in hoisting great bodies aloft. He must know how to fasten a hook over the top of a skyscraping chimney. He must have the nerve to paint a steeple that sways like a pendulum at the very top. He must be able to tear down, build up, gild, paint, place cockerels and do many another trick that would be a problem on the small earth.

There are many ways of getting up a steeple, and when all others fail the man will tie a rope round it and then, with a coil on his back, walk round and round it until the entire steeple is covered with rope, and he has probably been round it fully 300 times.

But a steeple is not the most difficult height to climb. Straight, tall chimneys are the hardest of all. There a man has to work with might and main to lift himself inch by inch from the ground to the top. Sometimes the top is 300 feet high. When it is reached, a hook is placed over the edge, a pulley is made fast, the swinging chair is hauled up and work begins.

When the chair is near the top, it is easier to work, because the ropes are short; but when they lengthen, as the ground is approached, there is a tendency to swing, and the wind gives impetus.

The man's safety depends upon the hook, and until he has raised himself almost to the top it is impossible for him to see whether or not the hook has been properly adjusted. More than once a steeple climber has seen when within ten feet of the top that corrosion of the iron and the collection of soot have so thickened the wall that the hook is merely balancing on the top, so that the slightest pull in the wrong direction would drag it off. Again, the bricks are often loose at the top, and the hook is likely to tear them away.

One of the natural difficulties to conquer is the swaying of all high steeples and chimneys. In a calm a steeple point will sway a foot and a half. Usually it sways from seven to nine inches. Painting it means reaching for a spot on the right side and finding it on the left, and when making a dive for it on the left to see it sway back to the right. Yet in spite of the constant danger a born steeple climber exults in his work and is at home only when high above the world. He can stand triumphant at any height if he can have two and a half square inches to bear his weight.

Miss Mary Rose Wheatly of Nelson county is the guest of her aunt, Mrs Pius Nally.

Mrs. Damon Carrico is on an extended visit to her sisters and other friends in Louisville.

Forty hour devotion began at St. Rose last Sunday evening. The alter was most beautifully decorated with fragrant flowers. The services were grand through out. The services were some what marred by ill mannered shuffling of feet. Surely the people were long enough at the doors to have gone in and procured seats before the divine services began without disturbing the reverend gentleman Those of the congregation that wished to hear well were well pleased to have an opportunity to attend the beautiful services on Sunday.

A great many from here have attended the church picnic last Saturday at Chicago They report a nice time and say that a good sum of money was realized for the benefit of the church over there While there many of them walked down to see the spot of earth which is on fire. It is something strange and should be looked into. There is one hole about the size of an ordinary well which has burned down about six feet and is very hot with smoke rising out all of the time. The ground for many yards around is very hot and cracked open, with smoke coming out which smells like a coal oil lamp which has just been extinguished. The timber close around is dying from heat This is as it comes to us which we believe to be correct as it is from a reliable source.

Owl Creek.

Your Fenwick correspondent is very much mistaken for the popular correspondent of Owl Creek did not pass through your little village Saturday.

Prospects for a good corn crop are very promising at the present time

Will Boblit and Ed Grigsby are both erecting large tobacco barns

Luther Boblit of Louisville is visiting his mother near here. He will return in a few days

Latest from S. H. Weakley says he is in St. Louis and has not yet determined what he will do

A practice game of base ball was played at the Mooresville park last Saturday evening. Members of several clubs took part. Quite a large crowd was present.

Mr. W. S. Boblit and wife, Joe Settle and wife, Chas. Butler and wife spent last Thursday at Tatham Springs.

Work on the pikes has begun in earnest

Oliver and Norman Gribbens are in Indiana prospecting. They went through to a buggy and will remain about two weeks,

Mr. Richard Trent and Miss Dora Crouch spent last Sunday with Miss Pearl Lynch.

Several took in the excursion last Sunday.

Mr. Lee Williams and wife and Mr. Ben Cull and wife of Polin dined with Mr. and Mrs. Tilos. Sweeney last Sunday.

We are exceedingly sorry that the Pastor at New Hope church commented so severely on our little paragraph in last week's issue that there would be preaching at the church first Sunday in August if the preacher came, I meant no insinuations towards him at all, but I will assure him that in the future I will never again cause him to comment on any item I may write.

Ed Sweeney and Jas. Huston have bought a new traction engine and have begun threshing again in our vicinity.

GEORGE ELIOT'S FACE.

Said to Have Been a Combination of Dante and Savonarola.

A close friend of George Eliot's, writing of her personal appearance, said:

"She was not, as the world in general is aware, a handsome or even a personable woman. Her face was long; the eyes not large or beautiful in color—they were, I think, of a grayish blue; the hair, which she wore in old fashioned braids, coming low down on either side of her face, of a rather light brown. It was streaked with gray when last I saw her. Her figure was of middle height, large boned and powerful. Lewes often said that she inherited from her peasant ancestors a frame and constitution originally very robust. Her head was finely formed, with a noble and well balanced arch from brow to crown. The lips and mouth possessed a power of infinitely varied expression.

"George Lewes once said to me, when I made some observation to the effect that she had a sweet face (I meant that the face expressed great sweetness): 'You might say what a sweet hundred faces! I look at her sometimes in amazement. Her countenance is constantly changing.'

"The sad lips and mouth were distinctly sensuous in form and fullness. She has been compared to the portraits of Savonarola (who was frightful) and of Dante (who, though stern and bitter looking, was handsome). Something there was of both faces in George Eliot's physiognomy.

"Lewes told us in her presence of the exclamation uttered suddenly by some one to whom she was pointed out at a place of public entertainment. 'That,' said a bystander, 'is George Eliot.' The gentleman to whom she was thus indicated gave one swift, searching look and exclaimed, sotto voce, 'Dante's aunt!' Lewes thought this happy, and he recognized the kind of likeness that was meant to the great singer of the Divine Comedy. She herself playfully disclaimed any resemblance to Savonarola. But, although such resemblance was very distant—Savonarola's peculiarly unbalanced countenance being a strong caricature of hers—some likeness there was."

DAIRY NOTES.

Clover is better than timothy for cows.

Regularity in feeding and milking is important.

To get all of the butter the cream must be uniformly ripened.

In milking squeeze the teats just hard enough to get the milk.

Cows that are good producers of rich milk must be good consumers.

In order to secure rich milk start with a rich cow and feed her rich foods.

In small quantities cottonseed meal is a good feed, but in excess it injures the butter.

Kicking a cow that is lying down may make her get up more quickly, but it will not induce her to give any more milk.

If rock salt is kept in the yard where the cows can lick it every day, there is no danger that they will get too much at once.

One of the most important conditions of churning is the temperature of the cream. No guess should be allowed, but a good thermometer used.

Judge Davis' Wit.

The late Noah Davis, justice of the supreme court of New York, was one of many judges and lawyers who make the courtroom the scene of some of our best wit and humor. The New York Commercial Advertiser gives some illustrations.

Once a lawyer objected to a witness, but Judge Davis refused to sustain him. The lawyer cried, "But, your honor, I submit!"— And here he broke off.

"That's right," said the Judge quickly; "always submit. Crier, adjourn court!"

In one case over which he presided there were fifty-five distinct offenses and four counts on each offense, 220 in all.

"Well," said Judge Davis, "there are more counts than in a German principality."

Old Times at the Capital.

In recalling the lively and picturesque incidents which the old timers enjoyed in Washington one is moved almost to tears over the commonplace nature of his own times. John Adams used to bathe in the Potomac every morning at daylight because they had no bathtubs in the White House, and no one ever pulled a kodak on him. President Taylor used to walk about the town and stop and chat with every one he met, like a policeman. A reception in the White House in these days is relieved of monotony only by the great crush of guests, who trample the clothes off one another's backs. Another president set up in the east room a six hundred pound cheese and invited the multitude to come in and help itself, which the multitude proceeded to do.

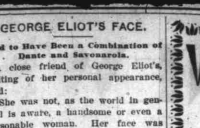

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer only realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Thedford's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Thedford's Black-Draught made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Morgan, Ark., May 25, 1901.
I cannot recommend Thedford's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never gave my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me up.

Man Should Live a Century.

There is no reason why, with proper food taken according to season, at proper intervals and in proper quantity, men should not live invariably, accidents excepted, to a hundred years. In fact, taking the length of life of animals as a criterion, this should be the length of life in men. The length of life of an animal should be four times the years it takes for it to arrive at maturity, and, as a man may be said to arrive at perfect maturity at the age of twenty-five years, so he should on this hypothesis live to a hundred.—Gentleman's Magazine.

The catalogues of the Nelson County Fair are now ready for distribution and can be had upon application to the secretary, Mr. J. L Brain of Bardstown. The present catalogue is by far the most attractive ever offered by this popular fair, the outside of the cover being adorned with a likeness of the great racing stallion Onward Silver, while the inside is chuck full of attractive features. The old Nelson County Fair is always largely attended from this section and in view of the many inducements offered by the management this season it is safe to say that it will be patronized more largely than ever by our people.

A breif telegram from Frankfort last Thursday announced the death at his home in that city of Clarence Hawkins after a short illness of typhoid fever. Mr Hawkins had been employed in the drug store of Haydon & Robertson at this place for several months and had left here only a few days before his death to go to his home at Frankfort. He was sick when he left but not thought to be dangerously so and the announcement of his death was a shock to his friends in Springfield. He was a young man who made a good many warm friends during his short stay in this town. He was twenty-six years old and a son of John C. Hawkins of Frankfort.

Society

The town has been quite gay socially during the past week and several pleasant "functions" have occurred. On last Friday evening the young men of the town gave an impromptu hop at the Opera House in honor of the visiting young ladies of the community. The affair was a very pleasant occasion and enjoyed by all who attended.

On Monday evening there were several entertainments. Mrs. C. C. McChord was hostess at a Ping Pong party at her home which was a pleasant occasion to her guests. Miss Willie Mayes carried off the prize as being the most expert player. Miss Veola Brown entertained on the same evening a few friends to meet her cousin Miss Ethel McClasky of Bloomfield. Another Ping Pong party was also given on Monday evening by Misses Eleanor and Mary McElroy. Miss Halstead of Bardstown was the guest of honor on this occasion. The younger set of young folks enjoyed a Lawn Fete on Monday evening on the lawn of Mr. J. Y. Mayes

Quite a number of young people from town went out to Texas Tuesday evening to attend a party given by Miss Litsey and J. R. Claybrooke at the home of Mr. A. L. Litsey

Springfield Baptist Church

The roll call and rally given at Baptist church in this city proved to be one of the most delightful events in the history of the church. There was a good attendance on the part of the membership, and all felt that a more cordial relation between them resulted. The roll call was much enjoyed as was also the very excellent solo of Mr. W. D. Wilson.

Judge W. E. Selecman one of the charter members in a well arranged address gave the history of the church, stating that the church was organized January 29th, 1884 with 27 charter members. The first pastor, W. J. Holtzclaw was called November 1886. The Sunday School was organized April 27. 1890. During the pastorate of Mr. Holtzclaw the present church building was begun and was completed during pastorate of W. C. Cleveland the second pastor who was called October 27, 1890. The church was dedicated second Sunday 1892, Dr, Kerfoot preaching the dedicatory sermon. Central Association met in new building September 1891.

The following deacons were elected by the church 1891: J. W. Jarboe. L. T. Spalding, J. A Boulware, W. E, Selecman all of whom still serve as such. W. C. Cleveland closed his pastorate September 1895, when Joe P. Jacobs was called as third pastor. After a pastorate of nearly one year he was succeeded by C. C. Pugh the 4th pastor who was called February 1897 and who served as pastor until his successor Geo F. Hambleton was called as the fifth pastor February 1899. The Central Association again met with the church in the same year. The pastor tendered his resignation much to the regret of the church and went as a missionary in Japan in 1901, taking with him as his wife the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L T. Spalding. The present pastor, George W. Swope was called in April 1901, since which time a beautiful parsonage has been built and the membership has been increased about 50 per cent of numerical strength, The exercises were concluded by a short talk by the pastor on "The present needs of our church."

DASHED TO DEATH

William Hughes Killed at a Railroad Crossing.

William Hughes a respected and well known colored citizen of the county was struck by the L. & N. accomodation train Monday afternoon at about 2 o'clock as he was crossing the Bloomfield road about a mile below town and instantly killed. The unfortunate man was struck by the engine and hurled several feet into the air alighting on a pile of rocks where his brains were dashed out The particulars are about as follows: Hughes was driving in a break cart and had started down the Bloomfield road towards his home. On the road he had overtaken Lucy Edelen wife of John Edelen of color and the woman had gotten in the cart to ride to her home a short distance below where the accident occured, On approaching the railroad crossing the Edelen woman became aware of the approach of the fast moving train just in time to throw herself backwards out of the cart. Hughes evidently either did not see or hear the train in time or thought he could urge his horse across the track to save himself but just as the horse had cleared the crossing the engine struck the cart in which was seated Hughes and the man and the cart were hurled with terrific force. Witnesses say that the body of the unfortunate man was turned over and over in the air and struck on a pile of rocks. When picked up by the train crew Hughes was dead, his skull being crushed as if it had been an egg shell The Edelen woman escaped injury, The cart was demolished but the horse was not hurt.

Coroner J, M Montgomery held an Inquest on Tuesday and after hearing the evidence of several witnesses returned a verdict that related the manner of the man's death but which was non committal as to whether there was any blame attached to the train crew. The train men are quoted as saying that they did not see the vehicle until the train was almost on it and that the whistle blew as usual for the crossing William Hughes, the dead man lived near Glenville and was in good financial circumstances. He was a brother of J West Hughes Secretary of the Washington County Fair Co. He leaves a wife and eight children.

NATURAL HISTORY.

Camels are the only animals that cannot swim.

A seal has been known to remain twenty-five minutes under water.

The starfish has no nose, but can smell with the whole of its under side.

The greyhound, which can cover a mile in 1m. 28s., is the fastest of quadrupeds.

Nearly all bottom sea fishes have the power of changing color at will, like chameleons.

A sea anemone, taken from the Firth of Forth in 1828, lived and flourished in captivity until 1887.

Horses, giraffes and ostriches have the largest eyes of land creatures, cuttlefish of sea beasts.

Grizzly cubs born in captivity are almost impossible to raise. Of twenty-three born at Cincinnati only one lived.

The Eskimo dog will eat almost any of the dried fruits. The sour or acid fruits, as the orange, lemon, lime, shaddock, etc., as well as the sour plums and the bitter olives, are rarely eaten.

To protect itself from the rain the orang outang crooks its arms over its head. The hair on the orang's upper arm points downward, while on the lower arm it points upward, the apparent purpose being to shed the rain like a thatch.

Why Did They Abandon Pompeii?

At a period when newspaper discussions were rather vapid, despite the accredited appearance of the sea serpent and the arrival of the large potato, Max Nordau in an Austrian journal propounded a problem that should lead to useful inquiry:

Why was it that the inhabitants of Pompeii did not return to their homes after the destruction of the city?

Of the 30,000 inhabitants a few hundreds at most seem to have lost their lives. The eruption of Vesuvius lasted only a few days. The deposit of lava and ashes was not very thick. The houses might have been easily repaired. Many of them stand to this day. They were beautiful houses, many of them, richly appointed and containing valuables of great price. Had the Pompeiians no love of home, or were they too superstitious, or did their terror at the eruption make them believe the disaster might come again?

AN OWL STORY.

Showing the Tyrannous Effect of Habit Upon a Wild Animal.

An English publication tells this interesting story of an owl:

A vague figure appeared out of the clouds, traveling against the wind toward the spire and looking more like a ragged piece of newspaper whirled about the heavens than any living thing. It was a white owl, and after watching him for some time I came to the conclusion that he was trying to get to the vane of the spire. A very idle ambition it seemed, for, although he succeeded again and again in getting to within a few yards of the point aimed at, he was on each occasion struck by a fresh violent gust and driven back to a great distance, often quite out of sight in the gloom. But presently he would reappear, still struggling to reach the vane. A crazy bird!

But I could not help admiring his pluck and greatly wondered what his secret motive in aiming at that windy perch could be. And at last, after so many defeats, he succeeded and grasped the metal crossbar with his crooked talons. The wind with all its fury could not tear him from it, and after a little flapping he was able to pull himself up, and then, bending down, he deliberately wiped his beak on the bar and flew away!

This, then, had been his powerful, mysterious motive—just to wipe his beak, which he could very well have wiped on any branch or barn roof or fence and saved himself that tremendous labor. This was an extreme instance of that tyrannous effect of habit on a wild animal. Doubtless this bird had been accustomed after devouring his first mouse to fly to the vane, where he could rest for a few minutes, taking a general view of the place, and wipe his beak at the same time, and the habit had become so strong that he could not forego his visit even on so tempestuous an evening.

THE COPYRIGHT LAW.

First Measure Passed For the Protection of Literary Property.

April 10, 1710, is a noteworthy date in the history of literature. On that day came into operation an act "for the encouragement of learning by vesting the copies of printed books in the authors or purchasers of such copies." This was the first measure passed for the protection of literary property. The word "copyright," according to Dr. Murray, was not used before 1767. In the preamble of the bill, which is said to have been drafted by Dean Swift, the necessity of a measure "to enable learned men to write useful books" is dwelt upon. By its provisions two terms of copyright, each of fourteen years, were created for all future publications, one term to follow immediately upon the other if the author were still living at the expiration of the first term.

According to a subsidiary clause, if any publisher issued a book at a price judged too high by certain "discreet persons" he was liable to a penalty. The "discreet persons" included, among others, the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord chancellor and the vice chancellors of Oxford and Cambridge. On them devolved the somewhat delicate task of fixing the book's value. This clause was repealed in 1739, but the term of copyright remained unaltered until 1842, when it was extended to the life of the author and seven years, or forty-two years from the date of publication, whichever may prove longer. England was the first country thus to protect the rights of authors. France followed suit in 1793, but in Germany no copyright law existed until 1870.—London News.

PICKINGS FROM FICTION.

Women love the lie that saves their pride, but never an unflattering truth. —"The Conqueror."

Slander is the crime of saying what other people think.—Max Pemberton, "The Giant's Gate."

It is as easy to escape from death as from a woman when once she's after you.—"Twenty-six and One."

The patron saint of bachelor girls is a saint of expedients. He has to be. He couldn't hold down his job or his halo if he were not.—"The Misdemeanors of Nancy."

While with mathematical accuracy two and two always make four, by adding a certain amount of personality the result will very nearly equal five.—"The College Student."

De meanin' of courage an' common sense must be understood. Many a man have died fom havin' too much bravery, but common sense never killed nobody.—"The Black Cat Club."

Her Opportunity.

"Mrs. Weeds," said Mr. Binks, "I asked your daughter to marry me, and she referred me to you."

"I'm sure that's very kind of Susie; but, then, she always was a dutiful girl. Really, Mr. Binks, I hadn't thought of marrying again at my time of life, but since you insist suppose we make the wedding day the 20th of this month."—New York Press.

SAD ACCIDENT.

Further particulars of the Drowning of John Ryan in the Whirlpool.

On the 27th day of July the people of Washington, Anderson and Nelson counties were almost horrified by the awful intelligence that John Ryan had met his death by being drowned in the whirlpool in Chaplin river. This dangerous spot is situated not far from the corner of the three counties mentioned above and is from 14 to 25 feet deep. On the 27th a fishing party composed of Mr, W. P. Ryan and his entire family came to the river with many other ladies and gentlemen about nine o'clock a. m. The ladies came to the whirl pool where there was a very fine spring and where they expected to clean and cook their fish. The men were fishing the rock about 200 yards below when Johnnie Ryan drove close to the edge of the gulf to wash his buggy. After a few minutes he attempted to turn his horse which being hard to manage reared up and fell into the water sinking instantly. As they went Johnnie was seen holding the reins. Several who watched this awful scene say that the horse rose once with the buggy and when he arose the young man was standing on top of the buggy holding the lines and calling his own name. He sank to rise no more. After sleeping in his awful grave for four hours he was found by Mr. Thos. Welch and brought to shore. Johnnie was buried at Rockbridge cemetery July 28, Bro. J. A. Simms preaching his funeral sermon. Of all the sad events which have ever been witnessed in our community this is the sadest, Those who witnessed it have a mental picture which eternity only can efface. Think of a young man just reaching his maturity, in perfect health—not a spot upon him, loved by all, kind to all, educated, refined and ambitious only to do his duty to his parents and to God, a perfect example of manhood. But his chair is now vacant, his school books which he loved so well have been tenderly put away. And now, dear father and mother cheer up for you shall "see him as he is", this will be enough. Hope is the anchor of the soul. Then do not sorrow as those who have no hope but remember Johnnie, Keep your hand upon the throttle and your hand upon the rail and the time will not be long when you will all be permitted to clasp your boy's hand upon the shore of eternal deliverance where no sad farewells are spoken and where grief is not known, you can be a united family around the throne of God, and now, in the language of William Cowper I will close. "The path of sorrow, and that path alone, leads to the land where sorrow is unknown. No traveler ever reached that blest abode who found not thorns and briars on his road.

E. P. DEDMAN.

Just Like Home.

A report from Mt Clemens, Mich. to the daily papers states that during the Kentucky editor's stay there the laundresses of the hotel where they were stopping went on a strike and the editors were forced to substitute pocket handkerchiefs for face towels. Tough luck? don't you believe it. That's about the only taste of home they have had since they have been gone. When they are at home in their offices they do like their printers—use the rear end of their shirts for towels when the laundresses go on a strike which is a daily occurance in some offices judging from the appearance of their towels However we have a clean towel in our office which has been nsed just two weeks and we have another in case that one gets soiled, Those editors are just puttin' on airs. When they come home they'll begin the old custom o using a more convenient article than handkerchiefs for face towels. In printing offices hand kerchiefs are for Sunday use —Hodgenville Herald,

There have been times when the wild beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the woman cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, by curing the womanly diseases which undermine the health and sap the strength. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"When I first commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y. "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, then I began taking your medicine. After taking the first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Costly Drive,

Dave Robertson, a young man of this city took a drive Tuesday night and will doubtless remember it for many days to come He secured a horse and buggy from L. C Givens and went to Danville, Hustonville and several other places that night, driving over one hundred miles. When he returned to Harrodsburg the horse was more dead than alive and Robertson was arrested by officer Britton charging him with cruelty to animals He was arraigned in the Police Court Wednesday afternoon and assessed a fine of $100 and costs and placed uuper $50 bond to keep the peace for six months. Being unable to pay his fine he was sent to the workhouse.

Robertson was accompanied to Danville by Frank Waggener another Harrodsburg young man of reckless proclivities who secured another horse and buggy after reaching there and drove back here and he was arrested on a warrant charging him with a breach of peace. He was fined $10 and costs. but being unable to pay his fine was also sent to the workhouse.— Harrodsburg Democrat.

Nelson Notes

From the Standard.

Mr. Rapier Hayden of Bards town the past week bought mules as follows: Of J. V. Pottinger two aged mules for $110 per head; of Morgan Gilkey two three year old mules for $175 for the pair: of James Boone a good mule for $110: of Robert Taylor two four year old mare for $120 per head.

Mr. George Downs of Wakefield has an interesting relic in the shape of an old clock of the "grandfather" species, which he prizes very highly. The old timepiece is over a hundredyears old and was made by L Watson of Cincinnati. It is about eight feet high and the works are made of wood. It was originally the property of Nathan Cain, a Kentucky pioneer and grandfather of Mr Down's wife.

Ed Burgin of Chaplin had a narrow escape from drowning one day last week. In attempting to cross Ashe's Creek after a hard rain, his horse was struck by a mass of heavy drift wood and knocked down. Mr. Burgin was thrown into the water and it was only after a desperate struggle that he succeeded in reaching land. Aside from a thorough soaking and several bruises he was none the worse for his injury.

George Hughes of Taylorsville recently sold a lot of sheep as follows: To Joe Wakefield, of Nelson county 40 stock ewes at $4 per head, to John Gore 35 ewes at $4.50 per head; to John Rogers 100 sheep at $3.85 per head: to John Snider 60 sheep at $3 85 per head: to Scott Snider 40 sheep at $3.65 per head: to John Durrett 35 at $3.75 per head: to Will Whitesides 50 at $3,50 per head, Mr. Hughes still has on hand between three and four hundred head of sheep.

THE HUMBLE HAIRPIN.

You Thought You Knew Its Many Uses, but There Are Others.

The comprehensive merits of the hairpin are known to all observant men. Its special value in surgery is asserted by a writer in American Medicine. It seems that a surgeon can do almost anything with a hairpin. He can wire bones with it, probe and close wounds, pin bandages, compress blood vessels, use it "to remove foreign bodies from any natural passage" and "as a curette for scraping away soft material." And no doubt the women doctors can do a great deal more with that most gifted and versatile of human implements. Anthropologists have never done justice to the hairpin. It keeps civilization together. In the hands of girls entirely great it is much mightier than the sword or, for that matter, the plow. What is the plow but a development of the forked stick, and what is the forked stick but a modification of the hairpin? If there was any necessity a woman could scratch the ground successfully with a hairpin now. In fact, there is no work or play in which something may not be accomplished by means of it.

Dullards will tell you that women aren't so inventive as men; don't take out so many patents. They don't have to. With the hairpin all that is do-able can be done. With a hairpin a woman can pick a lock, pull a cork, peel an apple, draw out a nail, beat an egg, see if a joint of meat is done, do up a baby, sharpen a pencil, dig out a sliver, fasten a door, hang up a plate or picture, open a can, take up a carpet, repair a baby carriage, clean a lamp chimney, put up a curtain, rake a grate fire, cut a pie, make a fork, a fishhook, an awl, a gimlet or a chisel, a paper cutter, a clothespin, regulate a range, tinker a sewing machine, stop a leak in the roof, turn over a flapjack, calk a hole in a pair of trousers, stir batter, whip cream, reduce the pressure in the gas meter, keep bills and receipts on file, spread butter, cut patterns, tighten windows, clean a watch, untie a knot, varnish floors, do practical plumbing, reduce the asthma of tobacco pipes, pry shirt studs into buttonholes too small for them, fix a horse's harness, restore damaged mechanical toys, wrestle with refractory beer stoppers, improvise suspenders, shovel bonbons, inspect gas burners, saw cake, jab tramps, produce artificial buttons, hooks and eyes; sew, knit and darn, button gloves and shoes, put up awnings, doctor an automobile. In short, she can do what she wants to. She needs no other instrument.

If a woman went into the Robinson Crusoe line, she could build a hut and make her a coat of the skin of a goat by means of the hairpin. She will revolutionize surgery with it in time. Meanwhile the male chirurgeons are doing the best they can, but it is not to be believed that they have mastered the full mystery of the hairpin.

When Women Were Extravagant.

Such a hue and cry as is raised about the extravagance of the women of our day, and yet at the court of St. James, in a dress of velvet embroidered with gold, which is said to have cost no less than $1,500, Marie de' Medicis had a gown sown with 32,000 pearls and 3,000 diamonds, and her example was followed by lesser personages, who cheerfully expended more than their incomes on gowns so laden with precious stones that their wearers could scarcely move about in them. Mme. de Montespan, the beauty who reigned at the court of Louis XIV., wore at one great court festival "a gown of gold on gold and over that gold frieze stitched with a certain gold which makes the most divine stuff that has ever been imagined," according to the panegyrics written by the pen of Mme. de Sevigne.

Missed a Good Dinner.

A doctor living in a certain country town was notoriously fond of good living. He had accepted an invitation to dine with friends, but as he climbed their steps he smelt venison cooking in the kitchen next [illegible]

The neighbors being also his friends he resolved to drop in on them unexpectedly to partake of the venison. They pressed him to share their informal dinner, but when he refused both soup and [illegible] host began to apologize for the simple fare.

The doctor then confessed that he was waiting for the venison, which he had smelt as he came in.

"Oh, that venison," said his entertainer, "we were roasting to oblige our neighbors, who have a dinner party next door."—London Answers.

A Mountain Climber.

At a reception of the Authors' club in New York the guest of honor was Sir Martin Conway, the explorer and mountain climber. One man who did not know the guest asked another:

"Who is here tonight?"

"Sir Martin Conway."

"Conway? Who is he? I can't place him."

"The mountain climber."

"Oh, yes! But what is he doing in New York?"

"Merely traveling from climb to climb."

Butter In the West Indies.

Every pound of butter that goes to the West Indies is colored a brilliant red. The darkies over there won't have any other color. They like red butter, just as they adore red shirts and red ties or the red label on a tomato tin. Grocers say that if a black and white label should be placed on tinned tomatoes, there would be no sale at all.—London Chronicle.

A Guess.

"Say, pop," inquired Willie, "why do we call women the opposite sex?"

"I guess," replied the old man thoughtfully, "it's because they're contrary."—Philadelphia Record.
